b. 2/1/1914 d. 2/5/2001

NAME: Heptinstall is a village in south Yorkshire England, near bebdon bridge in 1881. It comes from old Danish and means Roses in the Valley of Horses (Hep=roses, ton=place, stall=horses)

ANCESTOR CHARTS (horizontal)

More information and list of children are specified in second chart VERTICAL.

Directions:

- (1) Men are even numbers and women are odd numbers,
- (2) Wife is always numbered 1 more than husband,
- (3) Fathers number is doubled from child's number and conversely, male child is one-half of father's number.
- (4) The last male on the right side of each horizontal chart will be continued on a following chart numbered the same,
- (5) Relatives that appear more than one time in the chart will be designated with both numbers such as (40/44), but information will be listed on the lowest number and not duplicated.

Undated August 29, 2017. This is always an on-going collection of information based on the best information from many resources at a given time.

Census data from 1800 – only Heptinstall listed is William Heptinstall with no family information
